Her Story Starts This Week In Our Columns

EMILIE LORING
Author of "Hilltops Clear"

DAUGHTER of George M. Baker, who was associated with a great publishing house and whose plays are still being acted all over the English-speaking world, and granddaughter of Albert Baker, one of the founders of the newspaper which is now the Boston Herald, Mrs. Loring, whose latest story is to appear serially in this paper, had the background which led her naturally into a literary career, but her entry into the field of fiction writing was delayed by the fact that her family claimed her first attention.

Mrs. Loring is the wife of Victor J. Loring, a Boston lawyer, whose far-flung interests in civic, church and legal affairs she credits with having done much to broaden her outlook.

"When our sons fared forth to 'prep' school," she said, in response to an inquiry regarding her career as a writer, "my husband vigorously fanned a spark of literary ambition to which I confessed. For a year I wrote a book-letter for a Boston paper. I tried an article and, lo, it hit the bull's eye. Encouraged, I essayed a short story. It was accepted on its forty-fifth trip. I believed in that story, and so, evidently, did one other person in this great U. S. A. There followed other stories and articles and then came my first serial, 'The Key to Many Doors.'"

Since the appearance of this first serial, Mrs. Loring has written a number of other stories that have won her an established place among present-day authors. "Hilltops Clear" is in her best vein and presents a delightful combination of romance and adventure. Do not miss the opening chapters.

TREES ON CURBING DYING FOR LACK OF WATER

Chas. H. Daly and Mrs. C. F. Near made a special trip to San Diego Wednesday, calling on the Chamber of Commerce to see if influence could be obtained there to have city authorities water the beautiful trees here that are about to die for want of moisture.

Hundreds of dollars were spent in setting out ornamental and flowering trees which add beauty to our city, and now through negligence, they will be allowed to die if not taken care of for a month or two until we have enough rainfall to carry them thru the winter.

Just another case of no recognition to outlying districts of the city of San Diego by its duly elected and appointed officials, who claim there is no money available for this purpose.

EXPOSITION FUND DRIVE OVERSUBSCRIBED

At a victory dinner given Wednesday night in San Diego final reports were made on the drive for $500,000 needed to finance the 1935 California-Pacific International Exposition. The reports showed $687,000 raised, exceeding the request by $187,000. During the past two weeks or more the Exposition has been assured and plans under way for exhibitors to come here, have already been started. With this exposition to run the greater part of 1935 great good is expected to result to San Diego and the Southland.

EASTERN STARS HOLD ADVANCE NIGHT

Point Loma chapter 490, honored its line officers September 17, extending them the courtesy of Advance night. Edythe Kenline as acting worthy matron presided in the East in a very creditable manner and Harry Sweet as worthy patron did splendid ritualistic work.

The hall was crowded to capacity with a goodly number of distinguished visitors present. Katherine Ann Tilton and Bertha Page, deputy grand matrons, J. Hartley Taylor, associate grand patron, Lloyd Griffin, past worthy grand patron and Fred Werts, past worthy grand patron were escorted East and introduced as well as Nina Belt, grand representative and Nettie Taylor, wife of the associate grand patron.

A sacred duet sung by Maud Walters and Lillian Hartvigsen and solo by Lillian Hartvigsen was given during the initiation.

The acting worthy matron thanked the chapter, very graciously, for extending the courtesy of the night to the line officers and Harry Sweet gave a very interesting talk on his version of the optional lecture.

The banquet hall was decorated in honor of the line officers. The delicious refreshments were carried out in the color scheme of each association. The very capable chairman of the evening was Laura Rankin assisted by Mary Lee, Marion Sharpe, Helen Parks and Agnes Haffey.

The Point Loma Star club will meet Thursday September 27 at the home of Mrs. Edgar Hasting, Loma Portal. Pot luck luncheon will be served. Transportation will be furnished those desiring it, by calling Edythe Kenline or Gladys B. Nelson.

LOCAL ARTISTS AWARDED

Several local people whose skill is outstanding were winners in the Southern California Art show which closed Sunday in Balboa park.

"Wharf Buildings" oil painting by Maurice Braun of 507 Silvergate ave., Point Loma, was best among 234 exhibits, and he is to receive an award of the $100 Leisner-Farnham prize. Second place went to Frances Geddes for a portrait of Dr. E. L. Hardy, president State College; fifth place was taken by Jean Rittenhouse of Ocean Beach for her painting "The Rat" portrayal of a "rough-neck"

MUSINGS WHILE MEANDERING

(By Merrill Stuart)

Little Camp Fire Girl skipping on her way somewhere, eyes dancing with bright intent.

"Where now, little maid?" as I captured her for an instant. "Going to cooking-school," she answered. "Some day I'm going to have a tearoom all my own! That's my hobby—and we all have 'em!" she added as she wriggled away on her purposeful trail.

So, I mused, that's it Even thus early planning to find a way to some man's heart through that most gullible channel—his stomach! Well, why not? 'Tis an old, old game. These little Camp Fire Girls with their hobbies are the sweethearts, wives and mothers of the future. And there's 50,000 of 'em throughout the land!

Important, well-balanced little citizens are they, keen in their desire to do interesting things; finding their niches early in life; seeking individual freedom. No longer sheltered pampered clinging vines, choking lives of mothers, but standing on their own feet.

Hobbies? If there's anything better, I know it not. Going in for something and making good at it; following natural bent, initiative, working out developments. Such are these little Camp Fire Girls. Give them something to do—and then watch them do it! National Projects, too, are these hobbies. Crafts of all kinds; hygiene, home, citizenship, business, arts. Vocations already in the making; and lo, when the time comes, all ready for intelligent service.

Splendid athletic bodies; democratic freedom of camp life. Sleeping under stars learning life's experiences in the open; natural friendships without sham or restraints. Discipline also, for government comes more from within than without. Courtesy, co-operation, rubbing elbows in good comradeship; getting on with others in loyalty and generous frankness; sharing responsibilities; leaders in organization.

Youth is a part of the game of life—and a vitally important part it is since it comes but once.

Do we need these little Camp Fire Girls in our midst? I'll say we do; childhood is an asset. How could we do without their services? Their conduct and principles are those of the community; and the life of the community is after all the life of the world.

Weeds—tall weeds, short weeds; fat and thin ones; dry and thick and sere. Some brave with flowers; others drooping with dust and discouragement; those broken and bent, without excuse for being. Lording it over our landscape, popping up through sidewalks, lining parkings, decorating vacant lots. A wealth of weeds in our town, reveling in brazen right of way and citizenship—and none to say them nay!

I spoke to them about this as I wended my way among them. "Whence comes your vitality, oh little weeds, to grow where nothing grew before? Why your courage to flaunt yourselves without beauty, usefulness, water, care, or anything whatsoever? What's your excuse for carrying on, pray tell me?" They answered not at all, but nodded wisely—and the breezes cracked their dry husks and spread seeds far and wide for next year's harvest—and then they just went on growing.

How delightful to consider these weeds in our town, toiling not nor spinning! Even Solomon would just love 'em—and never do a thing to 'em!

1040 Students at Point Loma High School

The new unit of R.O.T.C. at Pt. Loma high school has an enrollment of 29 boys, with new rookies entering nearly every day. A color guard is being formed from the R.O.T.C. which so far consists of Dan Graham, Harry Hall and Marvin Powles. The color guard is to raise the flag at 8 a. m. and lower it at 3 p. m. The platoon is to get their uniforms sometime next week.

The enrollment of the school to date, as far as can be estimated, is 1040. It is thought that 1050 will be reached in the near future. Practically all of the classes are filled to capacity. There are at present 159 pupils in the low seventh grade, which is divided into four groups, making, in some instances, a class of over 40. While other secondary schools in the city are losing some of their faculty, Point Loma is retaining their full quota. Miss Mamie Marquardt has been assigned to teach half-time typing in place of Miss Dorothy Treiber, who has been transferred to evening high school. Mrs. Ruby Grey Johnson and Miss WillaB Brodie of the art department, who were ill last week, have returned to their duties.

The football season is starting in great style this semester with over 50 boys out to fight for their school in the Metropolitan league. Coaches Laurence Purdy and Joe Beekle are doing a fine job in building a good team for Point Loma high and with the support of the student body, we feel sure that Point Loma will have one of the best teams in the city. It is hoped that the field will be ready for the opening game, and we are told that the enlarged field is to be dedicated in the near future. Plans have been made to spread sawdust on the field which will be replaced by turf to be planted next spring.

The first football game for the Lomans this year will be next Friday, September 28, with Hoover High on the Hoover field.

POINT LOMA HIGH BROKEN INTO, $49 TAKEN FROM SAFE

Sometime between 7:30 p. m. Tuesday night and 6:30 Wednesday morning Point Loma High school was broken into and $49.00 taken from the safe. The robbery was discovered by vice principal Robert D. Williams about 7:15 a. m. Wednesday morning.

Two sections of the window on the north side of Principal Clarence R. Swenson's office were broken, and it was thru here that the burglars gained their entrance to the school.

If most of the school funds had not been deposited in the bank, the loss of the school would have been much more than it was.

Chairs were propped against the doors of the main office by the robbers so they would not be surprised while they worked at the combination of the safe which was knocked off with a cold chisel and hammer.

The majority of the money which was taken was in cash boxes which were broken open and later found by Mr. Buckle, the janitor, outside the building in a trash can. The money taken includes $12 in street car pass money, $20 in change which was to be used in the cafeteria on Wednesday, $7.00 from the student body fund and $10 in change and towel money. There were a number of trophies and other valuables in the safe which luckily were not taken.

The burglars also broke into the supply room on the lower floor, but did not take anything from there.

Sergeant Leach of the detective bureau and Lieut. Doran of the Ocean Beach police substation are investigating the case.

LOTUS CIRCLE—SUNSET CLIFFS

The Lotus circle for children will be held Sunday, September 23, 10:30 a. m. at 4624 Granger street. All children more than four years of age are extended an invitation to attend.

Patronize The News Advertisers, are welcome.

The second annual Electrical Exposition to be held this year on the Broadway Pier, San Diego, September 26 to 30 inclusive, will be bigger and better than ever, according to word just received from Clark Chamberlain, executive secretary of the Bureau of Radio and Electrical Appliances of San Diego county, sponsors of the big free show. In no respect has expense or effort been spared in securing a far larger and better show than that of last year which attracted over 51,000 persons. Fully 75,000 persons are expected to attend this year and adequate means have been arranged to accommodate this huge crowd. Double the exhibition floor space has been leased, double the number of exhibits have been arranged for and already secured, and a complete ventilating system, at no little expense has been installed to add to the comfort of those visiting the big show. Free door prizes, aggregating far more than last year have been secured and outstanding events have been arranged for opening night and all through the balance of the show. Many special exhibits of a highly educational and informative nature are in store for visitors and all the latest advance models of electric refrigerators, radios, and electrical appliances will be on display for all to see. Co-operation and enthusiasm from all those engaged in even the smallest phase of the show has been most gratifying. Chamberlain stated, and is bound to make this, the second annual free Electrical Exposition, a tremendous success from every angle.

KIWANIANS MEET AT THE LOMA TAVERN

Wednesday Kiwanis luncheon meeting was held at the Loma Tavern on Voltaire street with Myron Insko, president, in charge.

I. J. Claspill was chairman of the day, having as guest speaker, Supervisor Edgar Hastings, who gave a highly interesting talk and figures of the discrimination that is being shown San Diego and Imperial counties by officials who are in charge of government funds for the state of California. He said millions are being poured into the coffers of the two northern cities because in the control of these funds the majority come from L. A. and Frisco, and this majority has the say as to where the government monies shall go. Hastings gave in brief detail the move of the large metropolitan cities and Hearst papers for a five county plan for California instead of the more than fifty counties which we now have. He believed it would be far more advantageous to San Diego and Imperial counties to join with Arizona in a new state formation that would give the smaller population the same representation in the U. S. Congress, and result in securing support for San Diego's harbor and other interests, that we do not now receive on account of the larger cities taking practically all the allotments for their own use.

Rev. James Hughes was received into membership of the Kiwanis club by Dr. Thayer.

John Harrison of the Ocean Beach Hardware was a guest of the club and Wilber A. Martin, manager of San Diego branch Dun & Bradstreet, was a guest of Heber Hartvigsen.

G. D. PURUCKER LODGE No. 37

The G. de Purucker lodge No. 37 meets Friday, September 21, 7:30 p. m. at 4624 Granger street. This is a closed meeting. Visiting members are welcome.

Legion County Members To Meet Here Today

A committee in charge of arrangements for the third annual American Legion Beach party to be held next Friday, Sept. 21, at Ocean Beach, reports that everything is in readiness for the big party. It will be held at Tich's Tavern, Newport avenue and Abbott streets. The party will last all day, and the big program of entertainment, dancing and song will begin at 8 p. m. Jack Maurice and his music masters have arranged for a series of songs that are well known to legionnaires and their friends, and include many of the popular old war-time songs of this and other nations.

A number of musical organizations of the Legion have been invited to attend, and it is expected that every one of the 24 posts in the county will be represented, as invitations have been sent out to all of their commanders.

Several of the most popular entertainers of the local field have agreed to go on during the long program. They include Jimmy "Pep" Welch, old-timer trooper, who will be master of ceremonies; Mildred Manning, popular member of the Troopers club; Helen Arbaugh, well known singer; and others. They will entertain the large crowd of legionnaires, the auxiliary members and other organizations that have been invited to attend.

This is the annual party, given under the auspices of Ocean Beach post No. 433, the American Legion. Commander Ralph G. Chadwick, and other officers of the post report that everything has been arranged to give the Legion men and their friends the best party of the year. The management of the tavern, as well as the master of ceremonies, are Legionnaires.

CURRENT EVENTS PASS IN REVIEW

TEXTILE STRIKE IS BEGUN— CODE AUTHORITY OF RETAIL COAL DEALERS RESIGNS.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

TEXTILE workers started their strike on schedule time, immediately after Labor day, but there was no immediate indication of its success or failure. For the United Textile Workers, Francis J. Gorman claimed at the beginning that it was 50 per cent effective. He said he hoped to rally an increasing percentage of the workers to the strike and that he might bring about a strike of 150,000 more employees in related industries.

George A. Sloan

On the other hand, George A. Sloan, head of the Cotton Textile Institute, did not believe the strike was effective, especially in the South. He said about 100,000 hands were working in the southern mills and that only 10,000 had quit their jobs. These figures were scoffed at by union officials. In New England many of the mills were opened after Labor day, for a large percentage of their employees are not members of the union and are not in sympathy with the strike.

It was predicted that there would be considerable violence both in the South and in New England. The Communists were active, as always where there is trouble, but Gorman had warned the union members not to let the Reds get control.

The federal labor relations board, headed by Lloyd Garrison, made feeble efforts to prevent the textile strike, without success. The government authorities, however, had made it plain that the strike would be indirectly financed by the placing of the strikers on the relief rolls. This was strongly resented by Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and by industrial leaders generally.

NRA was dealt a severe blow when the Retail Coal Code authority resigned in a body in protest against the way the NRA is handling the code. The seven members, who were the ruling body under the Blue Eagle for 80,000 retail coal dealers, are: Roderick Stephens, New York, chairman; Milton E. Robinson, Jr., Chicago, vice chairman; Clarence V. Beck, St. Louis; William A. Clark, Boston; Charles M. Farrar, Raleigh, N. C.; Edward B. Jacobs, Reading, Pa.; and John McLachlan, Pullman, Ill. Their resignation was due to the NRA's claim that it can revise any code at any time without giving notice to the industry involved.

"As now enunciated by the NRA, the code is a futile and unworkable thing, while as originally agreed upon it represented a constructive basis for improvement of conditions in this industry," the members told General Johnson.

In a public statement accompanying their letter of resignation, the authority revealed that the NRA's failure to prosecute coal code chiselers and its failure to back up the code authority in its attempts to stop destructive price cutting were at the root of the dispute.

REPRESENTATIVES of the cotton garment industry from all sections of the country, including officials of 15 individual industries under the cotton garment code, met in New York and adopted a resolution refusing to abide by the recent order of President Roosevelt lowering hours and increasing wages for 250,000 workers in the industry. The order affected 4,000 units spread over 24 states.

The manufacturers voted to defy the President's order as "unjustifiable, unwarranted, burdensome and inequitable."

The manufacturers authorized and directed their counsel, Raymond A. Walsh of Washington, to take such steps if necessary as would protect the rights and interests of the members of the industry.

BECAUSE of his unwavering opposition to what he considered the extravagant expenditures of the government and to its inflationary monetary policies, Lewis Douglas has resigned as director of the budget. He had long been fighting against certain of the administration's policies, without avail. The two-year budget plan with its prospective deficit of seven billion dollars, presented to congress last January, did not have his approval; nor had the billion dollar deficiency appropriation bill and the schemes for the purchase of gold and silver. It was said his resignation was finally brought about by the announcement of Secretary Morgenthau that the so-called profit of two billion eight hundred million dollars resulting from the devaluation of the gold dollar would be used to curtail the public debt incurred by the New Deal. Since currency is ultimately to be issued against this "profit," and since there is only about five billion dollars of currency now in circulation, the Morgenthau plan contemplates a 50 per cent inflation.

The President appointed as acting budget director Daniel W. Bell, a permanent employee of the treasury. It was understood in Washington that there would be a general rearrangement in the Treasury department which would concentrate all fiscal powers in the hands of Secretary Morgenthau. Several officials who are not in full sympathy with the New Deal will be weeded out.

MANY of the dairy cattle bought by the government in drought areas are of high breed and so will not be slaughtered. The federal relief administration gave out a statement saying:

"It is planned to either exchange some of these high breed drought cattle for scrub cattle now in the possession of relief or rural rehabilitation families, or to issue them to such families where the need has been determined. Under this program the low-grade scrub cattle would be slaughtered where exchanges were made. The exchanges, or issuance of cattle without exchange, would be made upon recommendation of the various county relief administrations and county rural rehabilitation supervisors."

DISMISSAL of Maj. Gen. Benjamin D. Foulois from his post as chief of the army air corps was demanded by the house military affairs subcommittee, and Secretary of War Dern refused to act until the committee gives Foulois "a full and complete hearing." It is presumed, therefore, there will be another inquiry into the corps. The committee had charged Foulois broke the law by approving the buying of planes by negotiated contract instead of competitive bidding.

SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY MORGENTHAU, in his first speech since taking office, forecast an eventual inflation of $2,500,000,000 by announcing the treasury expects sooner or later to apply its gold "profit" to a reduction of the national debt. "For the present this $2,500,000,000 is under lock and key," Mr. Morgenthau said. "Most of it, by authority of congress, is segregated in the so-called stabilization fund, and for the present we propose to keep it there. But I call your attention to the fact that ultimately we expect this 'profit' to flow back into the stream of our other revenues and thereby reduce the national debt."

Secretary Morgenthau

The "profit" in question accrued through a bookkeeping operation when the amount of gold fixed by law as the equivalent of $1 was reduced from 23.22 grains to 13.71 grains. This meant that an ounce of gold was worth $20.67 one day and the next had a value of $35.

Just previously the treasury had taken title to all the monetary gold in the country, paying for it at the $20.67 rate. On every ounce it made a "profit" of $14.33, the difference between the purchase figure and $35.

The secretary gave in figures his estimate of the cost of the New Deal. Against an increase of $6,000,000,000 in the national debt, he asserted, various assets should be deducted. He listed them as follows:

An increase of $1,600,000,000 in the treasury's cash balance since March 4, 1933.

The gold "profit," amounting to $2,500,000,000.

An increase in the net assets of agencies wholly owned or financed by the government, amounting to $1,095,000,000.

AFTER five days of deliberation, the high council of the Salvation Army, sitting in London, elected Commander Evangeline Booth general of the army. Thus the supreme command of the organization is returned to the Booth family after a break of five years. Miss Booth, who is sixty-eight years old, is the only daughter of Gen. William Booth, founder of the army. For thirty years she has been at the head of the army in America.

FIFTY-SEVEN women have been named by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt as members of the national committee to direct the 1934 Mobilization for Human Needs. Mrs. Roosevelt is the chairman and those appointed vice chairmen are: Miss Jane Addams of Chicago, Mrs. August Belmont and Miss Ida M. Tarbell of New York city, Mrs. Frederic M. Paist of Wayne, Pa., and Mrs. Marcus C. Sloss of San Francisco.

STREET riots, strikes and other disorders were prevalent in Cuba, and the cabinet suddenly resigned. President Mendieta proclaimed martial law throughout the island republic. The cabinet resigned because the president bitterly reprimanded the ministers for tolerating the invasion of their departments by the hordes of students and revolutionaries who, armed with machine guns, forced employees to strike.

TRAGIC death marked the otherwise highly successful national air races at Cleveland. Douglas Davis of Atlanta, Ga., veteran speed pilot, was killed during the flying of the Thompson trophy race at the close of the meet. His little monoplane, traveling at more than 250 miles an hour, swerved from its course, pulled into a vertical climb and fell from a height of 800 feet. At the time of the accident Davis was leading in the race, which was won by Col. Roscoe Turner.

GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON, through a spokesman, has flatly denied the story of his dispute with Donald Richberg and Secretary of Labor Perkins over control of the NRA, but well-informed persons in Washington believe it is true. The President calmed the storm but put off the decision. The NRA is being reorganized temporarily to serve until the next congress gives it permanent form, and for the present Johnson retains his supremacy.

To bring about greater efficiency and economy the codes of the NRA are being realigned. Industry is divided into 22 classes, the initial move toward cutting down the number of codes from 682 to about 250 and grouping them in ten grand divisions. Mergers are relied on to make the drastic reduction in the number of codes.

Codes with similar or related interests are grouped together. Allied businesses will thus receive identical treatment on common problems, officials said. The codes also are expected to be easier and cheaper to administer.

The 22 classifications in turn are based on four fundamental groups as follows:

Producing Industries—Food, textiles, leather and fur, ferrous metals, non-ferrous metals, non-metallic products, fuel, lumber and timber, chemicals and paints and drugs, paper, rubber.

Fabricating Industries—Equipment, manufacturing, graphic arts, construction.

Service Industries—Public utilities, transportation, communications, finance, amusements.

Distributing trades—Professions and services, wholesale and retail codes.

"FERGUSONISM" in Texas was struck a probably fatal blow when James V. Allred, the young attorney general of the state, won the Democratic nomination for governor in the Democratic runoff primary. By a majority of about 45,000 votes he defeated Tom F. Hunter, who was backed for the nomination by "Ma" Ferguson, the present governor, and her husband, James E. Ferguson, who formerly occupied the office until ousted by the legislature. The Fergusons have controlled Democratic politics in Texas for some twenty years, but their sway probably is now coming to an end. Mr. Allred is only thirty-five years old, but has come to the top swiftly. His nomination is equivalent to election.

J.V. Allred

UPTON SINCLAIR, the Socialist author who turned Democrat in order to run for the Democratic nomination for governor of California, succeeded in his purpose. In the primaries he ran far ahead of George Creel, who was director of propaganda during the World war; Justus S. Wardell, conservative, and Milton K. Young, the Democratic candidate in 1930. Sinclair campaigned on a plan "to end poverty in California" which was set forth in a book he published. It calls for the state to take over and operate defunct factories and businesses and farms acquired because of tax delinquencies as a means of placing the unemployed. Sinclair's opponent in the election will be Frank F. Merriam, the Republican acting governor. Senator Hiram W. Johnson easily won renomination and is on the Republican, Democratic, Progressive and Commonwealth tickets; his only opponent is George R. Kirkpatrick, Socialist.

South Carolina Democrats will have to hold a runoff primary to decide between Cole L. Blease, former governor and senator, and Olin D. Johnston, young attorney of Spartansburg, for the gubernatorial nomination. In a referendum held as a guide for the legislature the drys were defeated.

Democrats of Mississippi also will hold a runoff primary to determine whether Former Governor Theodore G. Bilbo or Senator Hubert D. Stephens shall represent the state in the senate.

MUCH political benefit to the administration in the congressional campaign is expected to accrue from the reciprocal trade treaty with Cuba which has just been announced. It is the first of the projected trade agreements and little criticism of it is likely to be heard. The domestic sugar producers, who of course do not like the reduction in the duty on Cuban sugar, were prepared for the action by discussions of past months and accordingly had adjusted themselves to the situation. Furthermore, they are given a measure of protection by the quota of 1,902,000 short tons allotted to Cuba under the provisions of the Costigan-Jones sugar law.

BRITISH people the world over rejoiced at the announcement that Prince George, fourth son of the king, was engaged to wed the lovely Princess Marina, niece of the late King Constantine of Greece. The announcement from the palace in London said: "It is with the greatest pleasure that the king and queen announce the betrothal of their dearly loved son Prince George to Princess Marina, daughter of Prince and Princess Nicolas of Greece, to which union the king has gladly given his consent."

Prince George

The princess, who was educated in Athens, Paris, and London, speaks fluently French, English, Greek, Russian, and German. She inherits all the beauty and charm of her Russian mother and the pleasing personal qualities of her father.

They're Not "Fair Weather" Friends, Either

After "watching the clouds roll by" for fifty years, Dr. Charles F. Marvin, seventy-six, has completed his term of service with the United States weather bureau and gone into retirement. At the farewell party given in his honor by his fellow office workers, he is shown congratulating Miss Annie Relie, most recent member to join the bureau.

Putting Uncle Sam's Brands on Drouth Cattle

A federal worker with a brush and paint is putting a few daubs on Bossie's coat to show that she has been purchased by Uncle Sam. Other cattle bought in the drouth area in Kansas are near-by waiting to be checked off and marked.

New Destroyer Is Launched

The Macdonough, new $3,500,000 destroyer named in honor of Commodore Macdonough, victorious leader of the American squadron that fought the British off Cumberland Head, Lake Champlain, in 1814, just after she was launched at the Charlestown navy yard, Boston.

Adolph Menjou, film star, and Verree Teasdale, actress, were married in Los Angeles by Judge James H. Pope. Menjou was recently divorced by Kathryn Carver.

Largest Synagogue

Undoubtedly the largest synagogue in history was the Basilica of Alexandria, Egypt, which was destroyed after the Jews made their great exodus under Moses. This edifice was so huge that it held several hundred thousand persons at a time and each trade guild had its own section. The responses of the congregation had to be directed by a flag signal.—Dorothea Meyer, Clinton, Okla., in Collier's Weekly.

Leave Hole in Graves

Indian graves in the Canadian woods are built in the form of mounds and covered with a low, tentlike structure of bark, with an opening in front, in order that (the Indians believe) the spirit of the departed may get out.

Qualified

Mike—I saw a woman blacksmith today.
Fat—What was she doing?
Mike—Shoing chickens.

SHOWS HIS SOUVENIRS

Midshipman Edwin Denby got home to Annapolis, with 800 or so of his buddies, from a summer cruise in European waters, and he is seen here showing his mother, Mrs. Edwin Denby, some of the souvenirs he picked up on the trip. Middy Denby's father was once secretary of the navy.

BOOTLEGGERS' FOE

HANDSOME, HAPPY CHICOREE

"DID you ever see a happier fellow than my cousin, Chicoree?" demanded Linnet the Purple Finch of Peter Rabbit, as they watched Chicoree coming toward them. "I'll venture to say that he has been having such a good time that he hasn't even thought of building a nest, and here half the people in the Old Orchard have grown families. I've got a nest and eggs myself, but that madcap is just roaming about having a good time. Isn't that so, Chicoree?"

"Isn't what so?" demanded Chicoree, perching very near to where Linnet was sitting.

"Isn't it true that you haven't even begun thinking about a nest?" demanded Linnet.

"Quite True, but What of It?" Said Chicoree.

and there isn't any thistle-down yet. Then there is no sense in raising a family until there is plenty of the right kind of food, and you know we Goldfinches live mostly on seed. Just as soon as the children are big enough to hunt their own food they need seeds, so there is no sense in trying to raise a family until they can find plenty of seeds when needed. How do you like my summer suit, Peter?"

"It's beautiful," cried Peter. "That black cap certainly is very smart and becoming."

Chicoree cocked his head on one side the better to show off that black cap. The rest of his head and his whole body were bright yellow. His wings were black with two white bars on each. His tail also was black with some white on it. In size he was a trifle smaller than Linnet and altogether one of the smartest dressed of all the little people who wear feathers. It was a joy just to look at him. If Peter had known anything about canaries, which of course he didn't, because canaries are always kept in cages, he would have understood how Chicoree is often called the Wild Canary.

"I suppose," said Peter, "it sounds foolish of me to ask if you are a member of the same family as Linnet."

"Very foolish, Peter, very foolish," laughed Chicoree. "We belong to the same family, and a mighty fine family it is. Now I must go over to the Old Pasture to see how the thistles are coming on."

Away he flew, calling "Chic-o-ree, per-chic-o-ree, chic-o-ree!" As he flew he rose and fell in the air in much the same way Yellow-Wing the Flicker does.

Mother's Cook Book

UNUSUAL DISHES

WE ALL like to serve occasionally something a bit different and out of the ordinary, but for the daily diet the common foods simply served we enjoy the best.

Golden Coconut Shortcake.

Allow two slices of sponge cake for each serving. Prepare orange sauce by using one cupful of orange juice thickened with corn starch, adding a bit of sugar and butter. Cover each slice of the cake with the sauce in sandwich fashion, cover with thinly sliced oranges and top with freshly grated and sweetened coconut.

Stuffed Tomato Salad.

Scoop out the centers of six ripe even sized tomatoes. Chop the centers and add one cupful of cooked rice, one-half cupful of diced celery, four tablespoonfuls of cheese grated, one hard cooked egg, two tablespoonfuls of pimiento and one small onion, all minced; season with salt, a little lemon juice and any other desired seasoning. Fill the tomato cups and chill. Serve on lettuce with salad dressing.

Pot of Gold Dessert.

Mix one-half cupful of sugar with one-fourth cupful of cornstarch, add a bit of salt and a cupful of rich milk, one cupful of orange juice and when cooked until smooth and thick in a double boiler add two tablespoonfuls of butter and the well beaten yolks of two eggs. Let cook until smooth. Serve molded in individual molds, with whipped cream.

Maple Junket.

Dissolve one junket tablet in a tablespoonful of cold water, add to a pint of lukewarm milk, a little almond flavoring and a half cupful of maple sirup. Serve with the top of the sherbet glasses sprinkled with grated maple sugar or sprinkled with finely shredded almonds.

QUESTION BOX

By ED WYNN... The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I met a friend of mine today I haven't seen in years. He told me his father died on the "scaffold." He didn't seem ashamed to tell me about it, that's what got my goat. Can you account for a fellow who will go around and say a thing like that about his father, without blushing?

Sincerely,

I. D. CLAIRE.

Answer: Because your friend told you his father died on the "scaffold" it doesn't necessarily mean he was hanged for murder. He might have been a bricklayer and, if so, probably fell.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I am secretary of a little social club. We needed some money, so we decided to raffle off a piano. We had 2,000 tickets printed to sell at a dollar apiece. A day after they were all sold, our club rooms caught fire and the piano was burned to ashes. We are in a quandary what to do. What can you suggest?

Sincerely,

C. SHARP.

Answer: Very simple. Hold the raffle just as you had intended and instead of finding out who won the piano, you'll find out who lost the piano.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Do you believe in the old saying: "It's the deeds that count, not words?" Yours truly,

ROSIE CHEEKS.

Answer: Not when I'm sending a telegram.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I have not been well and don't feel strong enough to work. In fact, I haven't worked a day in the past six months. Can you advise me what to do that will make it possible for me to work?

Sincerely,

M. PLOYMENT.

Answer: Ginger ale is very good for your strength, but you must take it right away. Go to any drug store and take six bottles of ginger ale, run out of the place without paying for them and let a policeman catch you. When the policeman tells the judge that you took six bottles of ginger ale without paying for them, I guarantee that you will work hard, very hard, for the next six months.

Sometimes I Wake—

By ANNE CAMPBELL

SOMETIMES I wake and tremble in the dark, Thinking of you, across the miles of night. Your lamp of life burns with a feeble spark. I do not know when on a winged flight You will be through with living's sweet delight.

But this I know: when in the distant blue, Your soul shines out, a new and lovely star, On such a night as this my thoughts of you Will come and linger near you where you are. The light of your pure spirit will reach far,

Just as it finds me now, to lay a hand Upon my consciousness with you apart; Speaking of love while midnight angels stand— Dark sentinels who, with their woe-ful art, Lay hands of black foreboding on my heart.

Sincerely,

C. FOOD.

Answer: Of course, I believe it. In the first place the girl is seven years of age. That means she is quite small, being small she must have a tiny neck. The reason the clam cuddles by her neck is very plain. It probably is a "Little Neck Clam."

LOVE VICTOR FOR RICH YOUNG HEIR AND SERVANT WIFE

Snubs of Society Fail to Daunt Willock, Jr., and Bride.

New York.—If anything dramatic and significant were needed today to emphasize the change of social attitude among the rich and highly placed in the so-called fashionable East, one has only to turn to the experience of the millionaire Willocks of this city. First of all, the family is possessed of a fortune of $120,000,000. Second, it has a son and heir, William W. Willock, Jr., the pride of the line. Third, this scion, at the age of twenty-one—which was five years ago—defiantly married his mother's second chambermaid, Adelaide Ingebreten.

Wherefore, doors slammed five years ago at Gladwood, the palatial Willock estate at Syosset, Long Island. They slammed so hard the priceless jade and porcelain statuettes that fill the hall rocked on their teakwood stands and shivered against their crystal cases. Doors slammed barring the son and heir. He was never to "darken these expensive thresholds again."

Welcomed Home.

But, less than a week after the marriage, these same doors were opened again. They weren't flung wide in welcome, but they were opened enough to permit young Willy to enter with his blond Norwegian bride. She was accepted by the senior Willocks as their daughter-in-law, but with reservations. If the marriage didn't turn out successfully, she was to have no claim on her husband's vast fortunes. And everyone was certain that it would not be a success.

It was a whim! Adelaide's relatives said: "Such a marriage can never be happy. He is not of your people, not of your class."

But the young couple answered all such prophecies in unison:

"We love each other. We will be happy. It will last."

And they were right!

In November they will celebrate their fifth wedding anniversary, and five years of blissful marriage against such long odds is an acid test. And as though to strengthen the bonds that show no signs of severing, the young Willocks are at present renovating their home that stands at the entrance to "Gladwood," by adding a nursery. For Adelaide Ingebreten Willock has given birth to a daughter.

Snubbed by Society.

This marriage made it rather difficult socially for the Willocks. Society rather snubbed them. They were in the Social Register for a time, and then left out of the list. That made no difference at all to them. They do not want to be "socially prominent," as the expression goes, preferring to live simply and by themselves, content with their own path in life. When gay parties have been given by the exclusive North Shore "set" they were not invited.

Only a few weeks ago the son of a next-door neighbor of the Willocks, Frank L. Polk, Jr., married Miss Katherine Salvage at a very fashionable ceremony. Were the Willocks there? They were not. They hadn't received an invitation. Neither, for that matter, had the elder Willocks. But, what do they care? Not a whit.

Young Mrs. Willocks asks: "And why shouldn't the marriage be happy? Why is it so unusual for a servant to marry the man she loves—even if his parents are rich? In the fairy tales of my country it was always that way. A girl who was good could marry any one that loved her. I was never an adventuress!"

"When I was a little girl at home in Stavanger in Norway, I went skating with boys of the parish, but they were only friends. I had heard folk stories of my people that proved that good girls—girls who had no lovers—secured fine husbands. This is very true, for it is what happened to me."

DO YOU SUFFER FROM NEURITIS?

American and European Scientists Agree That Mineral Water Is Beneficial

TRY THIS NATURAL WAY

People spend hundreds of millions of dollars every year going to the great mineral water health resorts of Europe and America.

Many of these people have to travel thousands of miles. Many of them were suffering untold pain from "rheumatic" aches, from arthritis, from neuritis, from gout. Others suffered from certain stomach ailments or excess acid or sluggishness or a general rundown condition.

The scientific and medical records of Europe and America show that a very large percentage of these people gained blessed relief and help by these natural mineral water treatments.

Today, however, you do not have to travel long distances to partake of the healthful qualities of fine natural mineral water. You do not even have to pay the excessive cost of having it shipped to you in quart or gallon containers. For Crazy Water Crystals bring to your own home the precious minerals of one of the world's fine mineral waters in crystal form at a great saving in expense.

To Crazy Water Crystals absolutely nothing is added. All you do is add Crazy Water Crystals to your drinking water and you have a great mineral water which has benefited millions.

If you, or any of your friends, suffer from "rheumatic" aches or pains we suggest you investigate Crazy Water Crystals at once. Just ask any of the millions of people who have given them a full and fair trial and you will realize how beneficial they have been to so many sufferers.

The standard size box costs only $1.50 and makes enough mineral water for several weeks treatment. Crazy Water Co., Mineral Wells, Texas.

AMERICAN MANHOOD

WE are seemingly engaged in various enterprises for attaining the high plane of 100 per cent American. To be a true citizen, measuring up to such a principle is, indeed, closely allied to the Golden Rule. If we drink at the fountain of such a standard of living, the Millennium will not be far away. But we default in our integrity too soon to make any appreciable rating.

The growing race of adult life has gone too long to dwell on the pinnacle of perfection. There is hope for our children and the country, but we are too politically "dyed-in-the-wool" to change the picture. With this severe indictment put upon us, means nothing else but "tied hand and foot" for making any improvement; but youth of the nation is the salt of the earth. Unless we save the youth from departing from the ways, progress in civil government will continue to be delayed.

The Boy Scouts of America are already setting the pace for which we have practically failed. If all were to live up to the Scout creed—and it has been estimated that 95 out of every 100 scouts do, an assisting arm would surely find its way into international statesmanship. They are setting an example that is to take deep root in the government systems of the future.

But what is to become of the political conniving hordes that steal into the confidence of honest government and sow the seeds of greed and selfishness with lying tongues? These vipers are cheating us of the Jeffersonian principles laid down for our freedom and independence. But they have been dealt a blow through the trained boyhood of the land, who is to step in and use his influence. Soon it will be a Boy Scout vote for a Boy Scout candidate. In addition to this the Civil Conservation Corps is now training 7,000,000 young Americans between 16 and 25 who have neither been in school nor at work. Educators, employment and recreational experts urge that these young men, many homeless "drifters," be given the advantage of every pre-requisite for true citizenship. The new cry is "Do everything for youth—Because youth must do everything for America tomorrow!"

The fifth cutting of alfalfa is now under way with a normal yield, and that means an optimistic spirit among the ranchers. While the price is not as high as it should be, yet the quality is good and profitable to feed. With alfalfa selling at $14 and $16.50 per ton, it looks as though there will be some heavy shipments made this fall. Imperial Valley ranchers and also others, feel that they have need of their locality in order to conserve for stock feeding needs. The one big asset for raising bumper alfalfa cuttings is that water must flow copiously, which fact is again being realized in Imperial.

Governor Merriam's special short session of the Legislature starts new action toward meeting relief in the state. Saving the home and providing work for the unemployed are two major problems which must be faced if anything is to be gained, and it is going to take millions in a bond issue to stem the incoming tide. No special session in history can boast of greater economy, for with no paid salaries and bunching business into hours instead of days and weeks is nothing less than rigid economy.

The new school year has started off with keen zest from pupils and students in schools, colleges, academics and universities. These thousands of education-seekers are pouring over their lessons, which is a book knowledge, but the lesson of life is another more important course of study, which cannot be imparted but must be experienced. No student should fail to be trained along with the achievements in the recitation room, a vast concept of a really national outlook that comes through books and daily incidents of life. As an individual chooser, it is important to always keep a glimpse of the perspective before us as a guide to ideals and a preparation for becoming something, which will some day be unfolded in marvelous opportunity for service. This is why Cicero said that there is not a moment without some duty. This is an admonition worthy of remembrance.

Saturday, the 22nd inst., is the day of autumn equinox, the time when the sun's center in crossing the equator, coincides with either of the equinoctial points. It is when day and night are exactly the same in length. This is a period when we may expect storms and heavy gales. From this time on, there is every evidence of the fall season with its harvest well over and cold nights coming on.

The fruit of the vine is just now flourishing at its best in California. It behooves everyone to eat grapes and grow healthy. One of the truths in dietetic instruction is that a meal can be made out of a stem of grapes; that is to say the fruit has a high percentage of natural sugar, valuable minerals and vitamins. There is no fruit more palatable and delicious than good, well ripened grapes, especially the California kind with its extra influence of ultra-violet light contained in our Golden State atmosphere, which makes grapes highly nutritious and valuable as a food. When grapes are gone it is well to remember that a feed of raisins is the next best thing.

Herr Adolf Hitler in his dictator and lordship continues adding prefix titles to his name. He assumes the dual role of president-chancellor of the Reich increasing the administration for him as a great leader. He is not only the chief executive of his country but he is the most powerful dictator in the world. He will need all the statesmanship possible, to restore confidence and prosperity to his native land. Never can any man, however high in character and administration for ideal government, fill the same position of Paul von Hindenburg, his predecessor. Although a warrior, he lifted men's eyes to the same ideals infinitely above war. If men adopted and emulated his example, the world could rest in assured peace. He was a moral hero who stood like a rock for the right as he saw it. His was a story of character and fidelity, of calm and a service that is beyond self.

Lindbergh Ransom Money Found—Man Arrested

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20—Arrest of Richard Hauptmann in New York City in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping was announced today by Attorney General Cummings.

Cummings said "Hauptmann is known to have passed some of the Lindbergh ransom money and to have a substantial amount of it in his home at the time of his arrest"

Police announced they have in custody the man who received the $50,000 ransom money paid by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh in an ineffectual effort to recover his kidnaped son two years ago. The man is Bernard Richard Hauptmann, 1279 East 22nd st., the Bronx. The announcement said the man is an alien and came to this country as a stowaway 11 years ago. The report says that soon after the man's arrest officers found between $35,000 and $40,000 of the ransom money cached in the garage of his home in the Bronx.

OCEAN BEACH SCHOOL PTA

The meeting of the Ocean Beach PTA on Wednesday afternoon was enjoyed by the parents and teachers of Ocean Beach school.

Two musical numbers were given by our music chairman, Mrs. Frieze. The value of the PTA to your children was stressed in a talk given by Mrs. Fred Bethard, first vice president of 9th district.

Mrs. Vivian Bowling gave a resume of her plans for the year on selection of movies for our children, listing a number of titles which our local theatre will show during the coming month and which are esteemed highly by committees who wish to see character building pictures placed before our children. A copy of this movie list will be published in the Ocean Beach News next week.

Board members of the Ocean Beach PTA who attended school of instruction in San Diego, Monday, were Mrs. Nellie Horner, Mrs. Florence McCausland, president, Vivian Bowling, Olive Kline, Eunice Wright and Esther Wisdom.

We have a shelf in the library here in Ocean Beach where magazines and books are placed which will be of interest to parents of pre-school children of school age.

So search Johnny's coat and Mary's sweater for our newsette and notices from our school. Our newsette makes a desirable sheet in the scrap book, and is our direct and personal invitation to attend our friendly meetings so we may come to know each other as your children know our children.

It is most interesting to learn of the significance of the various universal symbols such as the cross, the swastika and the triangle as they appear all down thru the ages. Questions will be invited and all are welcome.

LOMA PORTAL PTA

PTA as the connecting link in the community between the home and the school was the topic of an address by Will C. Crawford, superintendent of schools, before members of the Loma Portal PTA Tuesday evening. The direct help to the needy child in the form of personal supervision of health and clothing were especially noted. An appeal was made to the parents and community to know the activities and curriculum of the school.

Mrs. George Lazar, president of 9th district gave a talk, stressing the fact that mothers need to be good citizens as well, alert to bills affecting schools and study legislation. Our council president, Mrs. Paul Schiefer, gave a resume of the summer sewing project; 480 new garments and 320 salvaged were made at a cost of $159. So successful was the emergency sewing, two permanent centers have been established. After two vocal numbers by Miss Bivens the regular business meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. Howard Eddy.

Two series of study groups were announced, 1st, six consecutive weekly fireside meetings beginning September 20, at the home of Mrs. W. C. Bryant, led by Mrs. Helen Craw.

TROOP 56 POINT LOMA GIRL SCOUTS OF AMERICA

The following girls have been named as troop officers for the school semester ending February, 1935: scribe, Phyllis Cook; treasurer, Grace Oliver; patrol leaders, Martha Sterne, Jackalee Grant; troop games, Julia Kelly and Otila Shields; troop songs, Grace Oliver and Addie Fish. —Phyllis Cook, troop scribe.

Stage Show "On Parade" Now at Orpheum

Following an extended run of a smash vaudeville show the Orpheum presents another program of stage entertainment which is said to top last week's bill. Ted Mack, the Orpheum master of ceremonies, has arranged an excellent program and each week he seems to "outdo" himself in arranging for the headline vaudeville acts.

Jack Russell and company in a skit titled "On Parade" will start the stage show followed by "Gene, Dory and Bobbie" those exponents of intellectual insanity; "Four Avalons" the classy delineators of comedy and harmony; "Deebee and Hudson" in music with trimmings; "Skeeter and Ray" in "How's Your Brother"; "De Hese" in "Days of the Don Juans" and last but not least Ted Mack will entertain with his band in several musical novelties.

Marion Nixon and Neil Hamilton head the cast in the picture "Once to Every Bachelor" which is the screen attraction now playing at the Orpheum. Supporting the stars in this picture are Aileen Pringle, William Austin and Raymond Hatton.

A two reel comedy, cartoon and travel picture will complete the show which runs until Saturday.

THERAPEUTIC POOL DEDICATION SATURDAY

The therapeutic pool for crippled children of San Diego County, built adjacent to Helping Hand Home for children at 36th street and National avenue, San Diego, will be dedicated Saturday, September 22, at 3 p. m., according to a statement released by Mrs. J. M. McColl, general chairman for the campaign. Dedicatory exercises will be held at the San Diego hotel at 6:30 the same evening.

Mrs. McColl says, "My sincere thanks to the editor of your paper for the splendid cooperation in giving this campaign ample publicity; and my gratitude to all those who participated directly in the campaign to raise the necessary funds for the pool, and all citizens who assisted in making this worthy undertaking possible by their direct contribution. The pool is finished and after the dedication ceremonies it will be turned over to the children. A cordial invitation is extended to all citizens who are interested."

NEWLY WED COUPLE TO LIVE IN VAN NUYS

The chapel of the Point Loma Methodist church was the scene of an impressive wedding ceremony last Saturday evening when Dorothy Hubbard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Hubbard of Ocean Beach was united in marriage to Harry Foltz, of Van Nuys. The Rev. James Hughes, officiating.

Mrs. William Hall, the bride's sister, was matron of honor and Dan Greenwood served as best man. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

The bridesmaids were Miss Mary Friel and Miss Jay Hawkins. Little Marian Purcell made a charming flower girl. John Quimby and Carlisle Cline were the ushers.

Mr. and Mrs. Foltz will reside in Van Nuys.

WOMAN'S CLUB MEMBERS HEAR ABOUT VACATIONS

Ocean Beach Women's club enjoyed some happy vacation reminiscences during the program hour Thursday last week. Harlan Wilson, member of the Ocean Beach elementary school faculty told of his summer camping trip with Mrs. Wilson and two boys from his school, in the Mineral King country, near the High Sierra.

"Our nation is safe in the hands of this generation," Wilson concluded after three weeks with these boys who were able to meet all hardships like true pioneers. He recommended such a trip to fathers as a means of learning to appreciate their sons. To build a fire with one match after a rain, and cook a supper from bacon, corn meal, salt and water, with only a cup to work with requires true woodsmanship, he said.

Then he mentioned cookies that were known as "Sierra Mysteries," which were "quite unusual and wore well," and the ingenuity with which the seats of two pairs of trousers could be patched from the legs of one.

Members told of motor trips to San Francisco, Grant national park, a cabin cruiser voyage to Catalina, and more than one happy summer in that best of all places for an ideal vacation, Ocean Beach.

Mrs. H. Clyde Walter gave two piano numbers, and Mrs. Nell Kelly, a humorous reading. Tea was enjoyed at small tables, arranged by Mrs. Don Horner.

During the business meeting Mrs. Stanley Burne, president, announced the appointment of the following chairmen for the year: American Homes, Mrs. Eliza Tank; films, Mrs. Don Horner; civic, Mrs. Albert Dumont; crafts and industries, Mrs. Anna May Palmer; drama, Mrs. Nell Kelly; garden, Mrs. C. J. Schumacher; music, Mrs. Eva Hunt Demarest; study, Mrs. Kathryn Grey Santry; arrangements, Mrs. Hyde Cook; membership, Mrs. C. W. Varney; press, Mrs. Julia T. McGarvey, assisted by Mrs. L. B. Hayward, and program, Mrs. D. L. Anderson.

The club will hold their rummage sale the last of this month. Donations of all kinds will be received by calling Mrs. Kenline, BV 1448-J, Mrs. Hayward, BV 0706-W, and Mrs. Palmer, BV 0972-J.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Tremble, thou earth, at the presence of the Lord, at the presence of the God of Jacob." These words from the Psalms are the Golden Text in the Lesson-Sermon on "Matter" on Sunday in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

One of the Bible selections in the Lesson-Sermon includes Paul's words to the Romans: "There is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Christ Jesus, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death. . . . For they that are after the flesh do mind the things of the flesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit. For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace."

Among the correlations from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, are the statements: "So-called material existence affords no evidence of spiritual existence and immortality. . . . Matter is not the vestibule of Spirit. Jesus reasoned on this subject practically, and controlled sickness, sin, and death on the basis of his spirituality."

OHIO SOCIETY

A free public dance and card party will be given by the Ohio Society on Saturday, September 22, at 8 p. m., in the Acacia hall, 1029 2nd avenue, honoring George L. Buck, the new city manager, formerly from Elyria, Ohio. This will be a splendid opportunity to all interested in city affairs to personally meet Mr. Buck and hear him.

Mr. Buck will be introduced by the resigning president, Mrs. Kathryn Parker, a former graduate of the Elyria College.

A silver offering will be taken to defray expenses.

GOOD WILL STORES SALES CONTINUE TO INCREASE

Supt. Myron Insko, who resides in Ocean Beach, has just submitted to the board of directors of the Goodwill Industries his regular monthly report, showing the workings of the organization for the past month. In it he points out that a new high record was achieved, in the paying out of 95% more cash as wages during the month than was paid out on the same account in August 1933. This was made possible by an increase of 78% in the cash receipts from the Goodwill store. More store sales mean, of course,

Government

WITH drastic changes taking place in the governments of nations, much attention is turned in these days to forms of government and to discussions of various types of government. People, somewhat bewildered by diversity and untoward conditions in their personal affairs, are prone to turn to their national government either with appeals for help or with condemnation. Some are looking for safety and security in government, while others are fearing the encroachment of government control.

Christian Science has much to say about government. Mary Baker Eddy, the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, speaks often of God's government of man. She speaks of the endowment with life and intelligence of whatever is governed by God. "God has endowed man with inalienable rights, among which are self-government, reason, and conscience," she writes on page 106 of the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," and adds, "Man is properly self-governed only when he is guided rightly and governed by his Maker, divine Truth and Love."

Through the ages mortals have sought freedom to think according to the dictates of their own conscience, freedom to act according to their own best judgment, and freedom to govern their affairs righteously without interference from others or from the state.

For a long time mortals have sought freedom from tyranny, freedom from slavery, freedom from oppression and depression, freedom from sin and from sickness. Christian Science strikes at the root of these evils, and helps weary people to find the realization of that state of being wherein man is governed by his creator—free from enslaving beliefs.

Sometimes a person is not aware of just what it is that is governing him. It may be fear of the future or grieving about the past that seems to cast a shadow over his mental outlook. It may be that some person with whom he is associated exercises much influence over him and pressures him to govern his thinking and decisions. Or it may be that the responsibility for trouble and unhappiness is laid to business circumstances or family connections.

Whatever may be the seeming influence or unrighteous government, there is a way of escape and a means of correction. Christian Science gives the spiritual basis from which a person can learn how to have his thinking and his actions directed and governed by God. This alone leads him to safety and security. It demands that he look outside of human selfhood for guidance and control, as did Jesus, the master Christian.

Jesus sought beyond his human personality for direction and government. By his constant recognition of his true, spiritual selfhood, which was ever existing with God, and by his obedience to God's government, Jesus was able at all times to prove his freedom from wrong influences and unrighteous control, and therefore was able to demonstrate the true government of God. He always claimed close communion with his heavenly Father, and acknowledged the power of Mind, or God, and his unity with it. At one time, when speaking of his healings, he said, "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work."

To be "properly self-governed," then, and guided rightly, each one must be governed by his Maker, by Truth and Love. Each individual must seek the guidance of the Father, and be willing to let Truth control his thinking. Being governed rightly requires a surrender of self-righteousness, a giving up of human will power, a forsaking of the carnal thoughts of jealousy, rivalry, hatred, and the like. This brings true freedom, which establishes both divine and human rights.

This working out of God's righteous government in his own experience helps an individual to support and encourage righteous government in his nation. Since a nation is made up of many people, the understanding of righteous government by more and more of these people will of necessity aid in bringing about improved national government.

Regardless of the vicissitudes through which the governments of nations may go, or through what changes their constitutions or laws may pass, the enlightened citizen will cling to the God-given rights of freedom. He will recall often the prophetic account of the coming of the Messiah by Isaiah, where it is said: "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever."—The Christian Science Monitor.

more cash to expend, and the policy of Goodwill is to expend every cent, as far as is possible, in the employment of the needy of San Diego county.

During the month there was an average of more than thirty persons employed daily, and a total of 6422 hours of opportunity labor was given. Thus, he says, was the Goodwill motto, "Not Charity but a Chance", exemplified.

Reports received from the other 97 Goodwill branches in the various cities of the country indicate that similar progress is being made and that they are playing a very important part in the solution of the unemployment problem, especially as affecting aged and handicapped persons, who find it so difficult to find work even in prosperous times.

Quilt Display Revives Memories Of Old Time Customs

"A Methodist, Methodist I was born, A Methodist I shall die; I was baptized in the Methodist faith And ate of the Methodist pie."

The early American was religiously minded. A scant drive of ten miles in any of the older portions of the country bears visible evidence of the extent to which the church in colonial and pioneer days was the pivot of religious and social intercourse and community activity. From hillside, and valley, at village crossroad and the head of Wall street the spires still rise to guard the dead that live beneath their shadows. In the long ago the half open sheds were filled with horses and whole families crowded the churches for the worship of the Sabbath. Between the sermon of the morning and the one of the afternoon, baskets of food were opened and the friends and neighbors ate together and the hour, the quiet, was one of friendly gossip.

Later when the country became more settled and there were more churches the Sunday lunch was discontinued and its place was taken by the "church sociable."

These sociables, according to the community and the time of year were characteristically named. Who does not remember the old-time "maple sugar festival" of the east where we were served with hot biscuits, warm maple syrup, pats of golden butter and glasses of rich milk, with old-fashioned cucumber pickles for a relish? June with fragrant beauty brought with it the "lawn festival". Herring saucers of strawberries were served to us by white-clad maidens, and with the strawberries were given rich home-made ice cream and delicious cakes, such as only our grandmothers could make. Later in the season came the "peach festival". Peaches smothered with thick cream accompanied by cake and coffee! In the winter there were "oyster suppers" and other happy gatherings.

Thus down thru the years there have come to us the social side of the church as well as the religious. At first the "sociables" were free to all. Later they were turned into a means for raising money, a custom that still obtains and even today does much to assure cohering friendliness and loyalty, under the leadership of the "Ladies Aid".

Sometimes unique and interesting entertainments are given in connection with the luncheons or suppers served by the women of the church. One worthy of notice was the "Exhibition of Patchwork Quilts" given in the log cabin of the patio of the Ocean Beach M. E. church on July 26th.

There is no antique more expressive of our foremothers than patchwork, which, in the main, took the form of bed quilts. Pieced or appliqued the quilt has been, in America, a wholly feminine creation. Women from the first have been guardians of the pewter, glass, china and furniture that today delight the collector. But none of these did women make. In needle work only did women hold full sway. In 1716 the "Boston News Letter", America's first newspaper, contained an advertisement informing women of a school where their daughters could be taught needle work in all its branches. These schools were, of course, for the well-to-do. But in every household, rich or poor, women sewed. In mansion and frontier cabin from the Cavaliers of Jamestown to the Puritans of Plymouth, scraps of linen, silk and more were jealously saved and pieced into quilts. Patchwork is an art that has been known and practiced ever since the first woven cloth wore out in spots. But nowhere has the quilt played so distinct and characteristic a part as in America. Quiltmaking here is an antique art where tradition has never died. Much of romance clusters about the quilting frame. "The Minister's Wooing" by Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stone describes the social occasion of "the quilting". She says: "The quilting was in those days considered the most solemn and important recognition of a betrothal." The "Hope Chest" was supposed to contain thirteen quilts, twelve for everyday use. One, of very elaborate design to be planned and executed only after a girl was definitely engaged. The others, so far as piecing went, were the work of the years of maidenhood, and as top after top was finished they were laid away to await quilting. The "quilting bee" was a great social function. The women came early and worked hard all day at the quilting frames. A chicken supper was the climax of the occasion. The men were in attendance for the feast and after supper came a grand frolic. Then—

"In the sky the bright stars glittered, On the banks the pale moon shone, And 'twas from Aunt Dinah's quilting party I was seeing Nellie home."

College song books record that Nellie answered "yes!" This old ballad, one of the most cherished in our beloved Stephen Foster in the early fifties.

In the exhibition held in Ocean Beach last week there were patterns used that have come to the women of today from their foremothers of revolutionary times. The exhibition was expertly planned and beautifully arranged by Mrs. Elsa Sayles, corner of Brighton and Sunset Cliffs. Mrs. Sayles brought a collection of seven quilts to the show, all of them the work of her mother, Mrs. G. W. Vorholt, who is 76 years old. Her quilts were made from the patterns known as "The Flower Garden", "The Double Wedding Ring", "The Postage Stamp", "Snowball", "Monkey Wrench", "Windmill" and "Yo-Yo", the latter quilt containing containing 1400 blocks.

Mrs. Amy Potts, who lives on Pescadero avenue, brought 5 quilts: "The Star and Crescent", "The Sunflower", "The Bethlehem Star", "The Princeton", and a silk "Crazy Quilt". One of the oldest quilt patterns known is the "Crazy Quilt", being made of scraps that could be used in no other way, fitted irregularly together. Nothing was wasted in those days! A pathetic touch was added to the display by a quilt made by Mr. S. J. Holmes. Mr. Holmes made this pretty quilt, called "The Fan", while watching by the bedside of his sick wife. He lives at 1645 Bacon street.

Three colorful quilts made by Mrs. Carl Theander of Point Loma were: "The Wedding Ring", "The Flower Garden", and "The Trip Around the World". The latter was interlined with lamb's wool and the blocks were pastel tints, and very small.

A quilt with a tragic history was shown by Miss Rosa Cooper of Brighton avenue. This quilt called "The Diamond" was made by the inmates of an insane asylum in Kentucky.

The "Sunburst" pattern is as gorgeous in coloring as its name and there were two of these in the exhibition, one owned by Mrs. Fred Manning and the other by Mrs. Virgil Simms.

A beautiful quilt "The Chinese Star" was shown by Mrs. Janie Butts.

Evangelists Mr. and Mrs. Lionel P. Furman are continuing their services for another week at this church. You are invited every evening except Saturday and Monday.

Mrs. Butts also brought "The Postage Stamp", tiny blocks and many of them.

Appropriate to our city was "The Ocean Wave" owned by Mrs. Maggie Henderson, of Brighton avenue.

Mrs. Tessa Hamilton's quilt "The Fleur de lis" attracted much attention.

Mrs. Mary Johnston of Muir and Abbott, exhibited two quilts: "The Baby Flower Garden" and "The California Poppy" and both were as colorful as their names.

Mrs. Ella Cole of Brighton ave., contributed five quilts: "The Stamp", "Checkerboard", "Boxes", "Cross and Crown" and "Persian Star". The latter being made of lovely patches of Persian patterns and colors.

Afghans belonging to Mrs. Margaret Kimball of Loma Apts., and Mrs. (Rev.) James Hughes were in the collection. Mrs. Nance of Sunset Cliffs blvd., displayed two unique quilts, "The Cross-stitch" and "The Dresden Plate".

Mrs. Mary Cook, of Cape May avenue, added three quilts to the exhibition, all interesting, one particularly so as Mr. and Mrs. Cook picked the cotton for its lining, in the southland.

The military touch was added by a table cover shown by Margaret Kimball. It was made of red and black scraps left from soldiers' uniforms. The cover was made by the owner's great uncle who was chief tailor of his regiment, which was engaged in the Indian Mutiny, the Crimean war and the capture of the city of Delhi, India.

Mrs. B. E. Askew of Brighton and Cable added a bit of romance by showing one of her wedding presents—a quilt made of satin pieces and bearing the unique name, "The Drunkard's Path".

In this day and age we have our guest books. We ask our guests to write their names, the dates of visits and appropriate sentiments. The fore-runner of the guest books were "Albums." Many of the sentiments inscribed were doggerel; some were beautiful. If the modern guest book is the direct descendant of the "Album" it is cousin to the "Autograph quilt." Dr. Lena Creswell, 4930 Niagara Ave., owns an "Album" or "Autograph quilt." It is, at least, 60 years old. It is made of the calico used for frocks and aprons in the 60's—Indigo blue and white and bears the names of Dr. Creswell's girl cousins, Mary, Leno, Amanda, Cassie, Kate, Fannie, Anna and Luie.

Mrs. Nettie Felt, who with her husband Doctor Felt, spent many years as missionary in India, showed five quilts, all interesting in history. One "The Star" was 75 years old, made by Mrs. Felt's mother. Another, a silk "Log Cabin," was made by Dr. Felt's mother and was taken to India with them 30 years ago. "The Butterfly" was made by Mrs. Felt's sister. "The Album" was made by the young girls in a boarding school in Nagpur, India. The quilt was made from pieces sent from America to the school. It was finished in 1918 and sent to America and was used for the raising of money for the school.

Many a church debt has been paid as the result of the quilt making proficiency of the ladies aid and many a dollar raised by "the women" has helped needy students of the church. It is said that the first suffrage speech ever listened to in Cleveland, Ohio, was made by Susan B. Anthony at a church quilting!

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

In speaking on the subject "The Secret Doctrine," at the Theosophical Headquarters on Point Loma last Sunday afternoon, Dr. Henry T. Edge defined this body of teachings, which is also often called the archaic wisdom, as "the root or essence of all religions. It is a master-key to knowledge. Today there is a widespread effort to unify all religions by finding in them common points of unity. This however is but a vague basis on which to unite. As in arithmetic, when we try to find the common factor; the more numbers we use the smaller is the common factor."

"The real way is to realize that originally all religions are not separate at all. All were started by great seers who taught the secret doctrine or universal wisdom religion. As time passed they tended to become materialistic. Politics and dogmas created divergencies. All peoples must be brought back to the esoteric basis of their own religions. This basis will be found in Theosophy, which represents today the secret doctrine of the ages."

"This doctrine is called secret because it is veiled, and these veils must be lifted by those who seek knowledge. Knowledge implies obligation, and not all are yet ready for a full measure of teaching."

Dr. Edge was supported in answering questions by Dr. Emma Wilcox, Mrs. Ponsonby and La Fayette Plummer. Next Sunday afternoon Mrs. Ponsonby will lecture on "Life's Consummations—Death and Rebirth." All are welcome. The meeting begins at 3 o'clock.

CHAPTER I

The automobile lurched over deeply rutted roads. When it didn't lurch, it skidded. A cold, bone-penetrating fog transformed trees into ghostly giants, houses into weird dwarfs and filled the world. Moisture dripped from twigs and branches. The faint far moan of a buoy drifted through the grayness with melancholy monotony. The smell of the sea crept behind the slackly fastened side curtains of the car. The lean, angular driver stopped the engine and climbed out.

"What is the matter, Mr. Puffer?" Prudence Schuyler inquired from the cavernous gloom of the back seat.

"Tires leaky. Guess they'll hold out till we get there, though."

His passenger valiantly swallowed an exclamation of concern. She patted encouragement on the hand of the woman beside her. She really needed someone to pull her spirit out of the pit of depression, she told herself.

A motor purred alongside.

"That you, Si? What's the matter? Tire trouble? Flat?"

The voice was hollow, muffled, a man's voice. Shut within the curtain, Prudence could see nothing but the uncanny mist.

"Tain't flat yet."

From the gruffness of his answer she judged that Mr. Puffer did not care for the person who had hailed him.

"Has the girl come?"

There was eagerness in the question, a hint of anxiety, more than a hint of arrogance. If the wheel under her could talk, she would have said that its shake was warning her to keep quiet, Prudence decided.

"Gorry-me, you wouldn't expect city folks to come to the country in this storm, would you? Whatta mean is, guess she'll get to the red brick house 'bout tomorrow."

The red brick house! Her house! The voice in the fog was inquiring for her, Prudence Schuyler! Why had Mr. Puffer evaded the question? She watched him as he resumed his seat.

"Phone me the minute she arrives, Si."

A grunt from the man at the wheel was the only response. A red tail light shot into the golden mist of its own powerful headlights and dwindled to a spark.

Prudence leaned forward. "Was that voice, which sounded like a demon of the fog, inquiring for me, Mr. Puffer?"

"Yep."

"Why did you sidetrack him? Why tell him that I was arriving tomorrow?"

"Gorry-me, you wait an' you'll see, Miss Schuyler. Whatta mean is, by tomorrow you'll have kinder got yer bearings an' I'll know what to say. Len Calloway'll tie you up tight to him, if he can."

"Tie me up! You're not alluding to a matrimonial tie by any chance, are you?"

The driver looked back. "Glad to hear you laugh. When I met you at the station, I was afraid you was going to break out cryin'. It sure is a mean night for you to arrive. Not much further to go. We're passing the Gerard place now."

It was evident that he considered the voice in the fog a closed incident. Couldn't he feel that she was fairly tingling with curiosity? Prudence asked herself. She had better seem indifferent. She said lightly.

"I'm glad to know there is something tangible to pass."

"Tain't always like this; just wait till the sun shines. Gerard is your neighbor on the east, that is, if you can call it being a neighbor when the houses are two miles apart. His folks come down only for the summer, but I reckon you've come to stay, judgin' by the truck load of stuff I carted up to the red brick house the other day."

For no reason she could explain to herself, Prudence Schuyler evaded an answer. With the intention of turning the driver's attention from her affairs, she suggested:

"Tell me about the Gerard family."

Her ruse succeeded. "I'll tell you about the Gerards; perhaps I'll take your mind off the rough going. The estate, which includes plane landing field, golf links, mountain streams, an' 'bout two miles of pond shore besides the sea front, belongs to Rod Gerard. His name's Rodney, but the townspeople call him Rod. He's one of those rich fellers you read about who fly airplanes, own a string of polo ponies, an' have a vally to bring up their breakfast, cruise their pants, an' lay out their pink silk pajamas—but he ain't a bit stuck-up."

"Sounds like a first family of Hollywood."

"Whatta mean is, folks here think a lot of Rod, but he has an older brother Walter an' that brother has a wife. Wait was the son by old man Gerard's first marriage; that wife didn't have any money, neither did he. After she died, Gerard, who was a handsome, gifted man, married an heiress and Rod's child. They built a house of stone and oak on a high ledge; that's the name of the place—High Ledges."

"It has a sort of approach-if-you-dare sound."

"As I was sayin', Rod's mother loved every inch of the land, turned abandoned quarry holes into gardens. She and her husband are buried in one of them. Old man Gerard died, then she went several years ago, and Rod—well, Rod was just out of law school and crazy about flyin' when he came into a big fortune; perhaps you've met fellers 'like that.'"

"Just like that!" Prudence concurred bitterly, and hoped in the next second that the man had not noticed the sting in her voice.

"He didn't show up here for two years after he lost his mother. Then last June he opened the place, and who'd he bring with him but Walt Gerard and his wife and little girl. Walt lit out pretty quick, but the Mrs. seized the reins of management and how she did drive. She's one of them women who's so busy helpin' God run his world that she lets her own folks get along as best they can. She's all a-twitter, winks one of her cold blue eyes when she thinks she's bein' smart; before you've been talkin' to her five minutes, she'll lug in a remark about 'my cousin, the ambassador.' She kept the house full of company all summer, young folks, but the girls were so homely they'd have stopped even one of them electric clocks which is supposed to run forever. She's a wise one."

Prudence temporarily forgot the fog, the reason for her coming.

"I hadn't supposed there were any 'homely girls' now, they know so well how to look like a million. Why is Mrs. Walter Gerard wise? Not because she doesn't care for beauty?"

"Whatta mean is, Walt, her husband, is handsome as a movie actor. She is tall, with horses' teeth and a kind of horse-shaped face. Guess she was handsome once—the women here say she's a nifty dresser—must have been or Walt never would have married her. He—well, he knows where the corn crib is. Their kid is thirteen years old. She's cute, but that curious that folks look up everything when they see her coming. Rod's awful good to her and she worships him. The Walt Gerards haven't much money. Rod gives them an income. That's another reason his sister-in-law doesn't want pretty girls around. 'Twould upset her apple cart terrible if he should marry.'"

"Has Mr. Rodney Gerard no mind of his own?"

"Yes—yes, he has, but since his mother passed away, Rod's kinder lazy; besides, he's got the idea some girl will marry him for his money." Puffer's voice deepened with affectionate anxiety. "You see, he has all he can spend. This is, I'm guessing so. Perhaps he thinks, why should I work now an' take a job from some one else?"

"Here we are, Miss Schuyler, this is your uncle's place. I forgot; it's yours now. Sorry you had such a tough night to arrive."

He stopped the car in the road before brick gateposts and sounded a lugubrious horn. In response, the hooded doorway glowed faintly through the fog with a sort of phosphorescence.

A woman, designed on the feather-bed plan, with an extra chin or two in the best Rembrandt manner, greeted her in the hall. She looked quickly away from the girl's face, patted her arm with motherly understanding.

"Come right in and wash and take off your hat. Supper's all ready, dearie. When you get something to eat, things'll look different. Life can seem awful dark and dreary on an empty stomach."

Prudence achieved a smile. "Thank you, Mrs. Puffer. This is Jane Mack, who has come to help me keep house. She has been a standby in our family since the first day she came to make little girl frocks for me. Will you tell her where to find things, please?"

As the two women disappeared, Prudence lingered in the hall, slipped out of her rain coat, pulled off her close turban. She entered the room on her right. Her brown eyes, already black from emotion, dilated as she saw herself reflected in the long old-fashioned pier glass between the windows.

"Not too bad." She made a gamin face at the looking-glass girl, before she turned to inspect her surroundings. The room was cozy, homey. Her spirit stirred damp wings. Her back-to-the-farm venture might not prove the flop it had seemed a few moments ago.

The dining room was cheery with crackling logs in the Franklin fireplace when she entered a few moments later. A huge platter of savory beef stew, garnished with fluffy white dumplings flanked by piles of plummy brown bread, gave out an appetizing aroma. For the first time she had left New York Prue's heart felt warm.

"Oh, how tempting! Come, Macky, aren't you starved? Mrs. Puffer, won't you sit with us and serve? It will seem more homey to have you here."

Stark, thin-lipped Jane Mack, her high cheek bones flaunting red flags of excitement, took her seat with an air of being about to commit a social blunder. The rosy-faced stout woman plumped into her chair with a contented sigh.

"Dearie, I'll do just that." After an interval devoted to serving and eating, she sympathized: "Hope you didn't mind the trip from the railroad station. Seven miles isn't far, but it's a long way to drive over a strange road in a fog."

"Only seven! I thought it must at least have been a thousand." The satisfying food, was ringing up the curtain of depression. "That is ungrateful when Mr. Puffer diverted our thoughts by most interesting descriptions of our neighbors."

Jane Mack made her one contribution to the conversation.

"Do you have movies here, Mrs. Puffer?"

"Three times a week in the village."

Prudence Schuyler's Throat Tightened as She Blinked at the Red Brick House She Had Inherited.

The manager tries to show the films people want to see."

"Does he?" Jane Mack's eyes snapped. "I love mystery and gangster pictures."

Prudence gazed at the thin face in speechless amazement. She had known the woman almost all her life, but had she been taking her to a picture, she would have selected one with de luxe settings and smart frocks. How little one could tell what was going on in a person's mind, even the mind of someone near and dear. She said aloud:

"Now we'll help clear away and do the dishes."

"Not you, dearie. You go into what your uncle called the living room, and set. If Miss Mack wants to lend a hand, perhaps she'll be more contented to be busy."

Curled in the depths of a wing chair before the purring fire, Prudence looked about the room—indubitably a man's room—which almost over night had become hers. It had the musty smell of furniture drenched with stale tobacco smoke. There was an air of mystery about the closed secretary. When her uncle had last sat at that desk, had he felt the faint far breath of eternity blowing toward him?

Her interested eyes wandered on. Above the mantel hung the one picture the room presented: a delicately colored engraving of Franklin at the court of France. Benjamin, stage center, bent his head to receive a wreath from the gorgeously apparelled Countess Polinac; while from a divan, Louise the Sixteenth and Marie Antoinette looked on with royal indifference.

They all had been real once, the girl mused; they had held their heads high while their hearts broke, they had smiled through tragedy, while she, with youth, health, opportunity, and her brother, had fairly wallowed in self-pity these last few weeks.

She sprang to her feet. "I'll make a vow, now, that from this moment I forswear self-pity. I will regard this experience at—what shall I name the place which has a lift to it? I know! Prosperity farm! Grand!—at Prosperity farm as an adventure which will lead to health for David and great, good fortune."

"I thought I was coming to a treadmill of endless monotones, and with-in the first hour a hollow voice—which set little merry pranks pricking through my veins—rumbles through the fog: 'Has the girl come?'"

"Meaning me. Why does the man want to know the moment I arrive? Why will he try to 'tie me up tight to him? That was an interesting bit of biography Mr. Puffer volunteered about our neighbors. I'm willing to wager my first crop of chickens that I shall detest the Gerard heir. Rich playboy. I have no illusions about his type. If I meet him, I'll be colder than an electric ice-box running on high. Also something tells me that Mrs. Walt and I will be antagonistic from the start. Maybe, though, I won't meet her; maybe she won't see her farming neighbor even as a dot on her social horizon."

"Miss Prue, I'm ready to go up now," lean, lank Jane Mack announced from the threshold. "Mrs. Puffer showed me where to find the supplies. I guess she'll be a good neighbor. Wish I hadn't seen that procession in my tea cup, though."

"Now, Macky, don't look for trouble in tea grounds; haven't we had enough fairly sitting in our laps these last weeks without hunting out more? Come on up, let's see the rest of the house."

Interest in Prue's eyes glowed into excited anticipation as they went from room to room.

"Macky, think of having a whole house in which to spread out after years in an apartment! We'll make it a dream. We will warm it with color till it makes hearts glow just to come into it."

A faint pink crept under the woman's skin. Her washed-out eyes shone with a lovely light.

"You'll make hearts glow all right, Miss Prue. Your brother said to me just before we left the apartment, 'I'm not afraid for Prue. She'll make a home wherever she is. She's like her mother.'"

Prue slipped her hand within the crook of the woman's thin arm and for an instant pressed her cheek against her hard shoulder.

"I suppose there isn't a person in this village who doesn't know that my brother's wife ran away with my sister's husband," she said in a muffled voice.

"There, there, Miss Prue, suppose they do? 'Twasn't your brother David's fault nor your sister Julie's. If folks here know about it at all, they know that. If you make too much of it, they may think there's something back of it all you're ashamed of. I know folks."

Prudence smiled and patted the woman's bony hand before she entered the room she had selected for herself.

Long after she had extinguished the light, she lay with wide-open eyes staring at the fog which hung like a curtain of gray gauze before the wide-open window. She watched the steamy fringe of water dripping from the window as she lived over the last weeks. As if his heart had not been sufficiently uprooted by the desertion and tragic death of his wife, David, whose health had been undermined by service overseas, had been ordered to give up work and live in the country.

The country! The inexorable command had staggered her at first. How could they go with no money for living? When the crash had come in their fortunes six months before, she had opened a studio and had worked professionally at what had been a delightful avocation—the craft of designer and maker of jewelry and silver boxes. Each month had seen an increase in the number and importance of her orders; then had come the command to go to the country, which had meant that she must give up her shop.

While she was struggling with her problems and doggedly assuring herself that she would find a way to relieve the situation, a way opened, but not from her effort. Her father's brother, Austin Schuyler, had invested part of his small fortune in an annuity, then had made the dream of years come true by buying and stocking a Maine farm with the remainder. For the first time in his life, he had said, he had what he wanted—and then one morning he didn't waken. He had willed the Maine property and five thousand dollars in cash to his niece Prudence.

Cleopatra, Dark Queen of Egypt, Maybe a Blond

According to the popular belief, Cleopatra was a brunette, and is frequently referred to as "the dark queen of Egypt." But historical sources do not supply positive evidence as to her actual complexion, notes a writer in the Cleveland Plain Dealer. She was a Greek by ancestry, and Egyptian only by birth.

So far as records go, she had no Egyptian blood in her veins. It is supposed the Ptolemies remained pure Macedonian Greeks, and their capital, Alexandria, was the center of Greek rather than Egyptian culture. Cleopatra, therefore, must be regarded as a Macedonian type, and the dark skin and hair of the native Egyptian afford no clew as to her complexion. Many Greeks were dark complexioned, but white skin, fair hair and blue eyes were not uncommon among the Macedonians.

One of Cleopatra's ancestors, Ptolemy Philadelphus, is described by Theocritus as having light hair and a fair complexion.

The Great Express Company Robbery

IT WAS in the early eighties that one of the cleverest crooks in the country stood outside of the wired enclosure of an Adams express office and looked longingly at a package of banknotes on a shelf beyond his reach.

It was near the noon hour and most of the clerks were preparing to go out for lunch.

The crook noticed that some of them wore linen dusters and that when they left the enclosure they doffed these office coats and tossed them to one side.

It did not take this gentleman long to come to his determination.

The door leading to the enclosure was partly opened.

He slipped inside and, tossing his hat into a corner, hastily put on an ink-smeared linen duster that had been discarded.

He stuck a pen behind his ear and in that guise readily resembled one of the regular clerks.

He was in the enclosure less than a minute, and when he departed he carried with him a package of bonds which was estimated to be worth $10,000.

A few days after this it was reported that a man entered one of the oldest and wealthiest banks in the city of Philadelphia, and by means of a sharpened umbrella pulled out a package of money from behind one of the grilled windows and made his escape with it.

The sum was placed at $1,000, but that was the least part of it.

The audacity of the theft was what caused consternation in the financial district.

If such things were possible, then no institution would be safe.

These two cases were much talked about, and they were especially interesting to Francis Kelly, the famous bank detective who patrolled the financial district in Philadelphia and whose beat included the custom house, the sub-treasury and the famous banking house of Drexel & Co., the Philadelphia branch of Drexel, Morgan & Co.

Kelly was not only a keen student of human nature, but he knew the ways of the get-rich-quick members of the criminal fraternity.

He discussed the matter with one of his associates.

"I'd be willing to stake my reputation on the fact that both of these jobs were done by Chauncey Johnson," he said. "I know his methods like a book and I don't know another man in the United States who could have pulled them off as neatly as Johnson."

Kelly had been in the United States secret service and had also been chief of detectives in Philadelphia, but at that time was in the employ of the houses in the financial district.

He acted, as he often said, as a "preventive."

The bank crooks knew that he was on the job there, and as a consequence they gave that section a pretty wide berth.

But the moth will hover around the flame, and one morning Kelly noticed a rather striking-looking man in the neighborhood of the Drexel bank.

The detective watched him for some moments, and presently the man entered the portals of the bank. Kelly walked up to him and touched him on the shoulder.

"Good-morning, Chauncey," he said familiarly, "what are you doing here?" "I don't know you," was the gruff reply, "and that's not my name."

"Why," was the cheerful reply, "everybody knows Chauncey Johnson, and I'm somebody."

It was impossible to brazen it out any longer, and the famous bank robber admitted his identity.

He insisted, however, that he had no evil intentions on this particular bank and had walked in for the purpose of looking at the large oil painting of the founder of the house.

The explanation was accepted, but the man was taken into custody and lodged in the city hall.

Later he was escorted to New York, where it was said that he was wanted for the Adams Express company robbery.

The moral is that it is dangerous to take too many chances—even if you are at the head of your profession.

Science Witnesses Evolution

Scientists are now permitted to see evolution in actual progress because of the discovery of red quail on a southern game preserve. This brick red specimen of the ordinary bob white is exactly like the rest of the family except as to color. This subspecies breeds true to color even when mated with the usual brown and white birds. It is the first time that natural evolution has ever been witnessed and consequently scientists are keeping a close watch on the birds.—Pathfinder Magazine.

New Sleeping Luxury

Celba fiber, the product of a tropical tree already widely used for insulating purposes, now bids fair to replace wool and down in the manufacture of bed quilts and comforters. Tests have proven it to be 22 per cent more efficient than wool for this purpose and as light in weight as the softest down. In addition this material is said to be naturally moth-proof and resistant to odors and does not have a tendency to "ball up" in the cleaning process as do ordinary comfortable fillers.

Mallorcans to Honor Father Juniper Serra

An important chapter of the once Spanish territories of California will be revived in far-off Mallorca this summer where a special celebration will commemorate Fra Junipero Serra, founder of the California missions, whose bronze bells, graceful arches and cream gold walls still give an exotic Mallorcan touch to the American Southwest.

The celebration will be held throughout the island of Mallorca, with special ceremonies in the little pueblo at Petra, the birthplace of Father Serra. Born in 1713, Miguel Jose Serra, after he joined the Franciscan order, was sent to Madrid, then to Mexico and later to the territory of California.

In 1796 he entered California and established the first mission of San Diego. From San Diego, Serra and his little band of sandal-shod monks trod the first path of the "El Camino Real" and pushed northward, establishing missions, each site becoming the nucleus of a new civilization where agriculture was taught, with seeds, cattle and equipment brought from Spain.

The medieval Mallorquin town of Father Serra's birth has changed less than the wilderness to which he was sent.

PATTERN 9845

The secret of the charm of this frock is in its youthfulness and appealing demureness, making it becoming to every type of figure. And best of all, it is simple as can be. To make, for the bodice and puffed sleeves are cut in one, and the waistline is snugly fitted by pointed seamings. The flattering collar is lovely fashioned of self or contrasting color. Make it with the help of the new Sew Chart—it tells and illustrates every detail in cutting, sewing and finishing.

Pattern 9845 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 39-inch fabric.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eighteenth street, New York.

A B C

"If you were a diplomat abroad would you learn the language of the country to which you were assigned?"

Hilltops Clear

By EMILIE LORING

A Romance as Refreshing as the Maine Pines which Play Their Own Important Part in the Story

Prudence Schuyler came to Prosperity Farm to make a new life for herself and her brother, whose health had been broken by tragedy. The world from which she was running away had taught her to distrust wealthy and presentable young idlers and when Rodney Gerard, their nearest neighbor, proved to be one of the despised clan, she closed her heart against him. But for Rodney she was the only woman in the world, so he set himself to prove to her that even for rich young men marriage can be "forever and forever." How well he succeeded is told in the closing chapters of Mrs. Loring's delightful tale.

Do not fail to read "HILLTOPS CLEAR," which will be published serially in this paper

IT STARTS THIS WEEK

WARREN - WALKER SCHOOL

Due to an increased enrollment, the Warren-Walker school has found it necessary to make additions to the teaching staff.

Miss Florence Gordon, graduate of San Diego State Teacher's College, and Miss Eleanor Newlon, graduate of the Maryland State Teacher's College and who has taught in Maryland and West Virginia, are teaching in the elementary grades. Milford Ellison, graduate of San Diego State College and University of Southern California, is to be art director.

In addition to spacious classrooms, the new location of the Warren-Walker School, at 4867 Santa Cruz street, affords excellent playground facilities. The equipment procured for the playground is a decorative addition to the school yard as well as being most enjoyable to the students. Two brilliant red teeter-totters, a swing, and a sand-box placed among the greenery and trees make an ideal setting for many happy hours during these warm, late-summer days.

A large area at one side of the yard has been laid out as a ball diamond for the older students in school. A jumble-maze of climbing bars, one of the pieces of playground equipment recommended by the State Board of Physical Education, has been installed. A portion of the yard, surrounded by pine trees which serve as a wind-break, has been converted into a shady and comfortable outdoor lunch-room. There is a bird table upon which the students can place crumbs, seeds, and water for their feathered friends. Many other plans are being made for the playground and each student is taking an individual pride in preserving and caring for the equipment.

CONFAR BOY QUIZZED HERE

Jackie Confar, age 10, last known person to have seen Dalbert Aposhian, prior to his murder last year and his body later found in San Diego bay, is reported to have been brought to Ocean Beach sub-station for additional questioning Wednesday. Representatives of the city detective bureau, the district attorney's office, and the committee of 600, were said to have come here with the boy, where they would have no interference from outside sources. The naming of another boy, Howard, last name unknown, was believed the only new evidence brought into the case.
